

Dear reviewers,

Thank you for your service as a reviewer for the Applied Animal Science journal in 2020. As the journal continues to improve in quality and citations, your contributions are very important. The editors, authors, and readers, as well as the ARPAS Governing Council, appreciate your contributions to the quality of articles published in the journal and hope that you will be willing to contribute reviews in the future.

Scientists, consultants, and practitioners, whether in academia, industry, or government, have many demands competing for their time, and we recognize your generosity in sharing your time and expertise with the journal. Reviewers who provide clear, fair, and unbiased reviews of manuscripts are a cornerstone of the publication's process, and we sincerely acknowledge your contributions to this process in 2020.

We hope you also will consider Applied Animal Science as a publication outlet for your research and professional perspectives and work in the near future. When you receive an invitation to review, we hope you will continue to participate in the peer-review process with us.

Best regards,
